

Special

Special...everyone wants to be special, special in itself, special to someone else... special what is special?

How are you special?

What makes you special?

Special.. unique .. yet at the same time humans spend an awful lot of effort of being the same .. fitting the norm.. so what do you want to be ? special or normal? What is the difference? Can you be normal and special? Special and the same?

You are special .. Every human is special... everyone has a particular way of doing things, using their talents, being themselves... that is special... accept that you are special in all ways.

Then realize that everyone is special. Then you may realize that special is the norm... just maybe not always the socially conditioned accepted norm... but the norm... that means the only question is: how special do you dare to be?

Are you daring enough to be show how special you are in all ways always?

Dare to be special because you are and then you see how many others there are that are like you:
special.